or South, can no longer hope to be effectual. The public repose would only be disturbed by such agitation, and present relations of hostility and ill will be perpetuated, without any advantage whatever to any class of our people, of any section of the confederacy. In closing this communication, I can with unalloyed sincerity reiterate the language which I employed on the 10th of January last, whilst addressing a vast assemblage of my fellow citizens, and declare again the earnest desire which I feel that the dissensions which have heretofore so unhappily prevailed among us, and which have been so deeply injurious to our prosperity as a people, should now disappear forever; that social concord and its attendant blessings should be once more allowed to reign undisturbedly in our midst; that party rancor should be made to give way to feelings of brotherly kindness and sentiments of genuine patriotism be secured a speedy and permanent triumph over all the evil influences which have heretofore so disastrously obstructed their being operation.

— A curious case from the Indian country, has recently been communicated to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs. More than a year ago a small child, some two or three years old, was missed by his mother, of a family of easy and perhaps wealthy circumstances. The alarm was given, a reward of $2,000 was offered, and every search was made, under hue and cry, for its restoration to its distracted mother.

GOOD PAY.—The pay of Louis Napoleon, as president of France, is twenty millions of francs year, ($2,130,000), which is about $192 500 per month equal to $5 320 per day. So Louis Napoleon gets in four days more than our President gets in a whole year; his pay for one day more than the annual salary of any of the members of our Cabinet. There is something after all in being President of France.
